

THE GEORGIAN QUARTER EXPLAINED...

The market town of Beverley's North Bar Within and North Bar Without form one of the East Ridings most treasured landmarks. These architecturally fascinating streets, divided by the 15th century North Bar, contain one of the greatest concentrations of listed buildings in the region.

Historically this area has been a thriving retail, leisure and business centre as well as being a popular tourist destination. Its premier location, street scene and grandeur has meant specialist retailers, boutique shops, quality restaurants, cafes and traditional pubs have become well established, particularly amongst fashion and style savvy shoppers. Businesses, serving the local community and further afield, have also thrived alongside this diverse retail and food & drink offer.

In recognition of its unique status and place in Beverley's history the area has been rebranded "The Georgian Quarter" to represent the unrivalled lifestyle and shopping that it has to offer. No visit to Beverley would be complete without taking in The Georgian Quarter where the eclectic retail, leisure and business mix makes it a must for locals, regular visitors and tourists alike.
